NEWS RELEASE

December 11, 2015

Applications Being Accepted for Shelby County Election Commission Administrator

The Shelby County Election Commission is accepting applications for the commission's new administrator. Richard Holden has served in that role for the past six years. He will retire at the end of December.

"We're especially interested in applicants who have knowledge of the elections process and have demonstrated leadership skills in public administration," said Robert Meyers, Chairman of the Shelby County Election Commission.

The Shelby County Election Commission operates at two locations: 980 Nixon Road in east Memphis and downtown at 150 Washington Avenue. The administrator oversees the daily operations and 14 full-time employees, and reports directly to the five part-time election commissioners. The commissioners are appointed by members of the Tennessee Legislative Delegation.

"All qualifying resumes will be carefully reviewed by a hiring selection committee that will then pass along the candidates to the election commission," added Chairman Meyers.

Resumes are only being accepted on line at: spclres@shelbycountyttn.gov
