Seminar for Investors Simplifies Tax Sale Process
Real Estate Road Show to be held Feb. 9

MEMPHIS, Tenn. – Around 2,000 residential, commercial and vacant properties are selected for tax sale each year for delinquent taxes. Potential investors can learn more about how to purchase properties from the Shelby County Tax Sale and Land Bank at the next Real Estate Road Show. The quarterly event will be held from 5:30 – 7 p.m. on Feb. 9 at the Memphis Area Association of Realtors (6393 Poplar Ave.).

At the Road Show, attorneys from the Trustee’s Office, the Clerk & Master Donna L. Russell and Land Bank Administrator Dawn Kinard will make presentations and answer legal questions. Civic Source will provide tips to navigate the tax sale website.

“Since taking tax sales to an online format a year ago, we’ve seen an increase in the amount of properties sold and the number of bidders participating,” said Shelby County Trustee David Lenoir. “By hosting the Real Estate Road Show, we want to make sure anyone interested in purchasing these properties is informed of the process and can ask questions of us.”

The event is sponsored by Chandler Reports and is free and open to the public. Prospective bidders may register at www.rersmemphis217.eventbrite.com.

The tax sale is conducted online four times each year. It is a joint effort of the Chancery Court Clerk & Master and the Shelby County Trustee’s Office. The next tax sale is Feb. 21-23 and can be found at www.civicsource.com.
