Food Safety

- The Shelby County Health Department continues to urge residents and businesses to toss any perishable food in the refrigerator if you experienced a power outage lasting more than 4 hours .
- Although you may look at the food and think it is safe to eat, meat items and dairy products should be thrown in the garbage.
- After 4 hours following the loss of power, meat items and dairy products can grow bacteria.
- Consuming dangerous foodborne bacteria will usually cause illness within 1 to 3 days of eating the contaminated food. However, sickness can also occur within 20 minutes or up to 6 weeks later.
- Although most people will recover from a foodborne illness within a short period of time, some can develop chronic, severe, or even life-threatening health problems.
- Symptoms of foodborne illness can include: Vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain and flu-like symptoms, such as fever, headache, and body ache.
- If you think you or a family member has a foodborne illness, contact your healthcare provider immediately.
- Due to symptoms of a food-borne illness, an individual is at risk of becoming dehydrated.
  - What is dehydration? Dehydration happens when your body doesn't have as much water as it needs. Without enough, your body can't function properly. You can have mild, moderate, or severe dehydration depending on how much fluid is missing from your body.
  - Signs and symptoms of Dehydration:
    - Thirst
    - Dry or sticky mouth
    - Dark yellow urine
    - Dry and cool skin
    - Headache and muscle cramps
- If you are a food establishment owner and have questions about food safety following Saturday's storm, call the Shelby County Health Department at (901) 222-9203.

- Prevent carbon monoxide poisoning - Only use generators outside, more than 20 feet away from your home, doors, and windows. Never use grills, camp stoves or other gasoline, propane, natural gas or charcoal-burning devices inside a home, garage, basement, or any partially enclosed area.
- Opening doors and windows or using fans will not prevent carbon monoxide (CO) buildup in the home. Although CO can't be seen or smelled, it can rapidly lead to full incapacitation and death. Even if you cannot smell exhaust fumes, you may still be exposed to CO. If you start to feel sick, dizzy, or weak while using a generator, get to fresh air RIGHT AWAY - DO NOT DELAY.
